

Annual National Award Honors Small Town Civic Volunteers

The Small Town America Civic Volunteer Award

The Small Town America Civic Volunteer Award is a national program that will honor 100 extraordinary local government volunteers in smaller cities, townships and counties under 25,000 in population. The program, which will launch July 15 online at www.civic-volunteer.com and run through October 15, is being sponsored by CivicPlus.

STACVA is intended to help spotlight the growing challenge small cities face in retaining and recruiting people to fill vital public safety roles as e.g., firefighters and emergency medical technicians, on municipal boards/councils and on local government committees that support planning, library, parks and recreation and other important services.

Localities represented by the top 100 national nominees will receive free volunteer management modules and 12 months of free ongoing support services from CivicPlus, with the top 3 also receiving cash awards of $20,000, $10,000 and $5,000 respectively.

The Barton Russell Group (www.BartonRussell.com) will administer the program and judging process.

Nominations begin July 15th @
